PAULINE
FREDERICK
Her Lovely Self
IN
"A STRIKING DRAMA OF TODAY"
THE CRIMSON HOUR
BY SAMUEL SHIPMAN AND JOHN B. HYMER
WITH
HUNTLY GORDON
AND SPLENDID CAST
STAGED BY GORDON DAVIS.

TO SECURE a play that would give Miss Frederick an opportunity to display her entire histrionic range has been no easy task. At last an ideal one has been found. In "The Crimson Hour" Miss Frederick has a role that is tremendously emotional . . . even more so than her famous "Madam X". . . a mother denounced and renounced by her own daughter. It is Pauline Frederick at her supreme height. Belasco and Curran have, as usual, surrounded the star with an excellent cast and a lavish production. Do not fail to see this popular and distinguished star in this splendid and thrilling drama.
